P-47D-26-RA s/n 42-28326 "6A2" named "Wave of Destruction". The original pilot was Lt. Martin Connor but he was KIA in another P-47D. After that it was used by other pilots. The pilot and crew chief had three names above the Goofy insignia. Pilot on the port side and crew chief on the starboard. Crew Chief was S/Sgt. William Pettit and armor was Sgt. Sy Tarsha, but Sy's name is not painted on the P-47D.

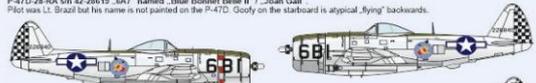

P-47D-26-RA s/n 42-28327 "6A3" named "Iron Ass" / "Louisiana Lady". The name "Louisiana Lady" in red with white outline and the bomb mission marks in black over the name on the starboard; the lower landing gear door is probably in neutral gray from another older camouflaged P-47D.

P-47D-30-RA 44-33192 "6A6" named "Here Comes Elmer Now". The victory marking is above the 'C' in "Comes". No mission markings or name on the starboard side of this P-47D.

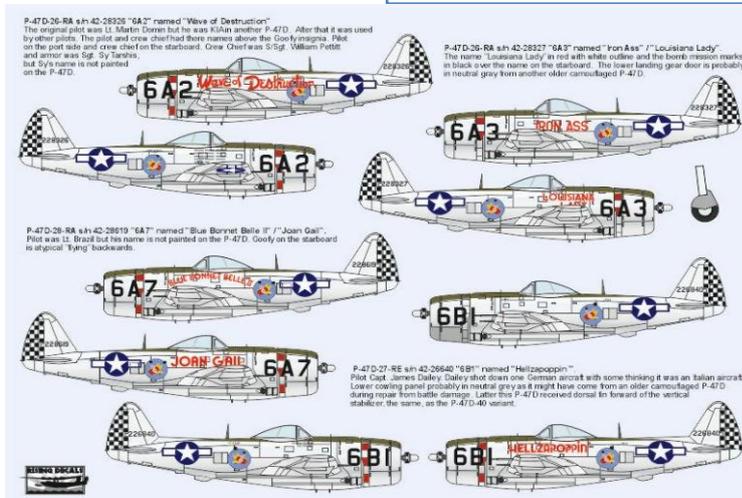

P-47D-28-RA s/n 42-28619 "6A7" named "Blue Bonnet Belle II" / "Joan Gail". Pilot was Lt. Brazil but his name is not painted on the P-47D. Goofy on the starboard is atypical "flying" backwards.

P-47D-27-RE s/n 42-26648 "6B1" named "Helzapoppin'". Pilot Capt. James Daley. Daley shot down one German aircraft with some thinking it was an Italian aircraft. Lower cowling panel probably in neutral gray as it might have come from an older camouflaged P-47D during repair from battle damage. Later this P-47D received dorsal fin forward of the vertical stabilizer, the same, as the P-47D-40 variant.

P-47D-26-RA s/n 42-28324 "6B2" named "JJ Bee". Pilot Lt. Edwin R. Kingston. Crew Chief S/Sgt. Hubert Craig. Armor Sgt. Bernard L. Spelber. The bomb mission marks in black on starboard.
